“ Brian Edward Rublee. He and I had a lot in common other than our first name. However in the almost 10 years of knowing him I never called him Brian, and he the same.. It was always, Rube, Rublee, Ruby Tuesday, and my favorite Rubicon, and Tomblin for me. He and I would always talk about Premier League soccer, our love of 90's music and I would even listen to him talk about the Hokies. And speaking of listening, Rube was the best, if you asked him a question or help with something he was never quick to answer, he would always pause, think for a second, maybe chew on his glasses and then give you a proper answer. Maybe he was just trying to get me to think but I believe he just wanted to give me the correct answer. He was also my go to guy for many other remedies as well. He always had a cure for a headache, and an endless supply of butterscotch and peppermint for my low blood sugar. And I would return the favor on occasion with a Wendys Frosty or Reeses cup and he would always be most gracious. Rube always knew how to get me to settle down as well and reel me in if I was getting out of hand at work, he once asked me if I could go somewhere else and be noisy. That quote I will never forget and I will never forget you Rube. Thank you to the family for sharing this gentle giant of a man with us all.

I love you Rube and I will Miss you.

“ I've had the pleasure of meeting and working with Brian at T-Mobile since May of 2019.

He was always a pleasure to be around and I loved our talks we would have together.

I always loved his opinion on various topics and we grew closer in recent months as he became not only our manager but a great manager and a very amazing special person.

He was always there for you no matter what. He will be greatly missed 😭 -Mike Jenkins
