“ My mother and Carol's mom were very close, and we all lived in the same house for some time. Carol Ann, as we called her then, was just like her mother and aunt...very kind, loving, and forgiving. That applied to both people and animals, which had a special place in their hearts.

Carol was more like a little sister during that time, and I particularly remember the battles fought to get her to stop sucking her thumb. She had a very special system that also involved her nose, and no amount of tape could stop it.

Unfortunately, I also witnessed many of the bad hands she was dealt early in life, none of which were her own doing.

But Carol was very resilient and through it all she stayed surprisingly positive and upbeat. With the help of Mike, Lisa and Bill, she played the hands about as well as they could have been played.

“ My dear friend Carol Ann, we grew up together for a little while and were play mates. We found each other after we became adults. I lost contact with you after you moved away from in town. I tried to find you so we could visit. I hate to hear of you passing, you were my dear childhood friend. I love you rest in peace my friend.
