“ I met Jerry as an impressionable child, and he did not let me down. Stacks of 45's, a library of albums and an endless enthusiasm – that's what Jerry gave to a younger version of myself. He introduced me to music that I still listen to today and it often bring back powerful memories of sitting in front of his stereo and pouring through his library while he shared stories of the concerts and the exploits of the Faze 5. As a gesture to my sister, to win me over, he bought to the top of the World Trade Center and entertained for a day. He had already won my approval.

Photography, history, electronics, computers and even the finer points of growing zucchinis! These were the things that Jerry shared and in such a way that encouraged curiosity and exploration. He let me take pictures at his and Kathy's wedding and when they were developed it was obvious that I had opened the back of the camera while the film was still exposed. Instead of focusing on the mistake, he admired the effect it created in the photograph. He was a good and kind soul and I'm the better because of him.

Thank you, Jerry!

“ I remember being assigned as a Resident Engineer to the Brooklyn VA hospital and Jerry was already there, my first introduction to a true New Yorker. While we worked on separate projects we quickly became good friends. Fast forward a bit and one day Jerry said let's go get some coffee. That was his excuse to show up in the Canteen to meet a group of young ladies for coffee - one of whom was Kathy Hart.

It wasn't long before I realized they liked each other. In fact they frequently came to our apartment in Bay Ridge to visit.

We became added "children" to the Doyle family, joining in on some of their family gatherings.

Fast forward a bit more- Jerry and Kathy announced their wedding plans and Jerry asked me to be his Best Man. I was honored. Little did we know that there was a huge snowstorm also scheduled for that date.

Beautiful wedding and then reception at the Ft. Hamilton officer's club.

Jerry got reassigned to another VA and we went our separate ways but he and Kathy have always been good friends and they showed the lovely side of New York and Bay Ridge.
