“ Kensey was such a special sweetheart. When she called my name for the first time, I burst into tears. I often shared my badge and microphone with her. Kensey will be so missed. Sending love and prayers.

“ My deepest sympathy and love for your family. Kinsey was a doll baby. I remember sitting beside at a party at Davis Creek and reaching over and pinching my arm and laugh about it! Know she is with God and our Angel Kyle is helping her. She will be watching over you and waiting for the day to be with you again. 🦋❤️🦋❤️🦋❤️

“ Miss Kensey and I became buddies in church when I helped with judgment house, her mother and I worked all week. I knew she needed a break so I took Kensey and her siblings to the kitchen. Where they had a concession stand. Her bright eyes had me then, she had wrapped me around her finger. They told me stories of them growing up, how Jessica loved them and knew Jesus loved them. She not short of love and affection, her siblings stood up for one another. I saw her go through many surgeries come through them;) deal with the recovery like a real trooper. The idea of child going through what she did and smile and make someone's day with her courage. She touched my heart my life. One thing I know for sure she is no longer in a wheelchair confinement limited in anyway. Kensey is running the streets of Gold like child should. We don't know or don't understand what and why of things. I have few things I learned from her and her condition that I'll not share from here. We should learn from people. One she made a mark on my life. My mother was paralyzed I understand wheelchair and limits, understanding from this standpoint being Jessica being her caretaker and mother.. Jessica hanging on for little bit of hope that things will turn out as normal. Then you say but God. Thank you Jessica letting me having that time in church with her. Miss Kensey beautiful eyed, Betty Davis eyes, you now have wings and you fly you run and we wait to see you again soon. Why he's coming again soon, Mathew 24.44 that my Kensey is soon. (V,?)
