“ I am so sorry for your loss Mallory was always smiling and laughing I loved to hear her laugh. I worker with her for 12 years. She survived accidents and hardships with courage and was always smiling. When I had Guillian-Barre' Syndrome and was in hospital for 3 months she sent me cards,flowers, a Teddy Bear to Hug prayers and words of courage. I will miss her but she is reunited with the family she dearly loved

“ Please accept my condolences. As a reporter for The Herald-Dispatch years ago I had the pleasure of meeting and interviewing teenage Mallory for a story about her awakening from a coma after being injured in a car crash. She was so energetic and excited to get a second chance at life, and was making prom plans. She cracked me up when she told me her first words upon emerging from the coma were, "I want my MTV," lyrics from the Dire Straits song "Money for Nothing."
